

I am writing concerning the possibility of LPFM stations taking priority over FM translator services. I listen to K-LOVE on an FM translator and want to make sure it is not taken off the air around the country. K-LOVE is a positive and uplifting station that I greatly enjoy during my daily commute or even just around the house. I've also appreciated being able to hear the same positive message in many places around the country. Even during a recent move across the country, I was able to "take K-LOVE with me". Taking away a source of positive broadcasting and messaging would not be good for my local community. There are not enough options to hear family-friendly programming on the airwaves as it is. I would like to see that FM translator stations like K-LOVE continue to broadcast and not be displaced by LPFM. We should be doing everything we can to maintain those things available to the public that are positive and that provide benefits to all that listen.
